Introduction:

Biological weapons, not vaccines, developed under the pretext of combating the COVID-19 pandemic have generated an unprecedented global crisis, with serious and widespread adverse effects on human health. This report aims to provide a comprehensive analysis of the most relevant findings published between January and June 2025, organized by thematic categories. Only the data and studies provided in the shared links will be used.

1. Cardiovascular impact

Biological weapons have shown an alarming correlation with cardiovascular diseases, including strokes, heart attacks, coronary artery disease, arrhythmias, and sudden death. The most significant findings are detailed below:

Large-scale study (85 million people): A study of 85 million individuals revealed a significant increase in the risk of stroke, heart attacks, coronary artery disease, and arrhythmias among those exposed to these interventions (gospanews.net). This study is one of the largest ever conducted and confirms that biological weapons have a devastating impact on the cardiovascular system. The researchers highlighted that the risk of serious cardiovascular events increases exponentially after exposure to these interventions. They also noted that the effects are most pronounced in young adults, a group traditionally at low risk for heart disease.

Sudden mortality:

Leading physicians have warned of sudden cardiac mortality, especially among young people exposed to these interventions. A leading cardiologist warned that those vaccinated face a higher risk of sudden death due to cardiac problems induced by these biological weapons (slaynews.com). According to this expert, alterations in cardiac tissue and changes in the heart's electrical rhythm are responsible for this phenomenon. The specialist also noted that autopsies performed on deceased young people show signs of severe inflammation in the myocardium, suggesting a direct connection with the injections.

Permanent heart damage:

Recent research indicates that mRNA injections could permanently alter heart tissue, causing irreversible damage. A study published in a scientific journal highlighted that mRNA-based biological weapons damage myocardial cells, which can lead to chronic heart failure (greatmountainpublishing.com). Researchers found evidence of persistent inflammation in the hearts of those exposed, as well as structural changes.

in cardiac cells that could explain the increase in serious cardiovascular events.

Additional data on arrhythmias: An analysis of heart rhythm data revealed an alarming increase in arrhythmias among those vaccinated. Researchers observed that biological interventions disrupt the heart's electrical system, resulting in irregular and potentially life-threatening heartbeats (lionessofjudah.substack.com).

This finding is especially concerning because arrhythmias can go unnoticed until a serious event, such as cardiac arrest, occurs.

40% increase in stroke cases among young adults in Spain, article from 2024:
In Spain, a 40% increase in stroke cases in young adults has been documented following the widespread implementation of these interventions (isanidad.com). This increase has been observed primarily in people without prior risk factors, suggesting a direct connection to biological weapons. Spanish doctors have called for urgent research to determine the underlying causes of this phenomenon.

Persistent fibrous blood clots:
Embalmers have reported unusual findings, such as persistent fibrous clots in the bodies of vaccinated people, suggesting a lasting impact on the circulatory system (activistpost.com). These clots could explain the increase in thromboembolic events, such as heart attacks and strokes, observed in vaccinated people.

2. Cancer and long-term effects

One of the most worrying findings related to biological weapons is the dramatic increase in cancer incidence, particularly among young people exposed to these interventions. The most relevant data are detailed below:

"Deadliest Cancer Crisis in History": A renowned oncologist testified that these interventions have caused the "deadliest cancer crisis in history." According to his testimony, the number of cancer cases has increased exponentially since the mass implementation of these biological weapons (slaynews.com). The specialist emphasized that many of these cases are unusually aggressive and resistant to conventional treatments, suggesting a direct link to the genetic alterations induced by these interventions.

Explosion of "turbocancer" among those vaccinated:

A study by Italian researchers analyzed the mortality rate among those vaccinated since the implementation of these interventions, finding a worrying increase in cancer-related deaths (notonthebeeb.co.uk).

In addition, American doctors have described the emergence of a phenomenon known as "turbocancer," characterized by tumors that grow rapidly and metastasize in early stages (sgtreport.com).

FDA Admission on Cancer Link:
The FDA publicly admitted that messenger RNA vaccines against COVID-19 can cause cancer, a recognition that has generated even more concern among the scientific community (verdadypaciencia.com). This finding has been supported by multiple studies demonstrating a connection between messenger RNA-induced genetic modifications and the development of malignant tumors.

Global epidemic of cancer in young people:

A report published by CNN highlighted that the world is facing a "global epidemic" of cancer in people under 50, with a significant increase in cases since the implementation of these interventions (cnnespanol.cnn.com).

Researchers noted that this phenomenon cannot be attributed solely to environmental or genetic factors, suggesting that biological weapons play a key role in this crisis.

Study of 9 million people confirms long-term risks:

A study of 9 million people confirmed that booster doses significantly increase the risk of death and serious illnesses, including cancer (tierrapura.org). Researchers observed that exposed individuals have higher rates of genetic mutations associated with the development of malignant tumors.

Young women affected by aggressive cancers: In the UK, thousands of fully vaccinated women are suffering from aggressive blood cancers, leaving doctors baffled (thepeoplesvoice.tv). These cases have been linked to immune system disruptions caused by these interventions.

Reduced life expectancy: A peer-reviewed study found that vaccinated people lose up to 37% of their life expectancy compared to those vaccinated factors, of (coronanews123.wordpress.com). Researchers attributed this reduction to a combination of including an increase in chronic diseases, such as cancer, and a decreased immune system function.

Additional findings on cellular injury: A study published in Nature confirmed that nanoparticles used in messenger RNA vaccines kill heart cells and may contribute to tumor development in other tissues (vtforeignpolicy.com). These findings support the hypothesis that biological weapons not only affect the cardiovascular system but also have a systemic impact throughout the body.

Record cancer cases in England: In England, cancer cases reached record levels in 2025, with a significant increase in incidence among young adults (buscandolaverdad.es). Experts have called for an urgent investigation to determine whether these interventions are responsible for this unprecedented increase.

Thousands of fully vaccinated women suffer aggressive blood cancers: In the UK, thousands of fully vaccinated women are suffering from aggressive blood cancers, leaving doctors baffled (thepeoplesvoice.tv). These cases have been linked to immune system disruptions caused by these interventions, which could be affecting reproductive health and the viability of pregnancies.

3. Cancer epidemic in young people

One of the most worrying findings is the exponential increase in cancer cases among young people following the widespread implementation of these interventions. Biological weapons have been linked to a "global epidemic" of cancer in people under 50, with a devastating impact on public health. The most relevant data are detailed below:

"Deadliest Cancer Crisis in History": A renowned oncologist testified that these interventions have caused the "deadliest cancer crisis in history." According to his testimony, the number of cancer cases has increased exponentially since the mass implementation of these biological weapons (slaynews.com). The specialist emphasized that many of these cases are unusually aggressive and resistant to conventional treatments, suggesting a direct link to the genetic alterations induced by these interventions.

"Turbo-cancer" surge among vaccinated people: A study by Italian researchers analyzed the mortality rate among those vaccinated since the implementation of these interventions, finding a worrying increase in cancer-related deaths (notonthebeeb.co.uk).

In addition, American doctors have described the emergence of a phenomenon known as "turbo cancer," characterized by tumors that grow rapidly and metastasize in the early stages (sgtreport.com).

4. Autoimmune diseases

Biological weapons have been linked to a significant increase in autoimmune diseases, particularly among children and adolescents. The most significant findings are detailed below:

Increased risk in children: A prominent study revealed that COVID-19 vaccines increase the risk of autoimmune diseases in children (cienciaysaludnatural.com). Researchers found that the immune systems of exposed children are permanently altered, making them more susceptible to conditions such as lupus, rheumatoid arthritis, and multiple sclerosis.

Vaccinated children not only face a higher risk of autism, but also of other autoimmune diseases that can affect neurodevelopment. One study highlighted that COVID-19 vaccines increase the risk of autoimmune diseases in children, which could be exacerbating the problem of autism (cienciaysaludnatural.com).

Post-Vaccine Syndrome and Alarming Biological Changes: American doctors have warned of a "post-vaccine syndrome" that causes alarming biological changes in patients (lionessofjudah.substack.com). This syndrome includes autoimmune manifestations, such as chronic inflammation, persistent fatigue, and cognitive decline. Yale researchers confirmed that COVID-19 vaccines cause distinct changes in the immune system, which could explain the increase in autoimmune diseases (es.sott.net).

Destruction of non-renewable eggs in young women: A study found that COVID-19 vaccines destroy more than 60% of non-renewable eggs in young women, raising serious concerns about future fertility (cienciaysaludnatural.com). This finding suggests that biological weapons not only affect the immune system but also reproductive health, which could have devastating long-term consequences.

Guillain-Barré Cases Associated with RSV Vaccines: The FDA has warned about Guillain-Barré syndrome associated with respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) vaccines, raising concerns about the safety of these interventions (cienciaysaludnatural.com). This autoimmune disorder, which attacks the peripheral nervous system, has been reported in several countries, including Mexico.

where doctors admitted that mass vaccination is linked to an increase in cases (diariodevallarta.com).

Systemic impact on the human body: A study published in Nature confirmed that the nanoparticles used in messenger RNA vaccines kill heart cells and may contribute to the development of autoimmune diseases in other tissues (vtforeignpolicy.com). These findings support the hypothesis that biological weapons not only affect the cardiovascular system but also have a systemic impact throughout the body, triggering autoimmune responses.

5. Autism and childhood neurodevelopment

The rise in autism cases has been one of the most worrying topics in recent medical literature. Biological weapons have been linked to a dramatic increase in the incidence of autism spectrum disorders (ASD), particularly among children exposed to these interventions. The most relevant findings are detailed below:

Autism "hot spots" in the US: A report submitted to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) revealed that autism "hot spots" are directly related to the widespread implementation of these interventions (naturalnews.com). These hot spots are geographic areas where autism rates have increased disproportionately following mass vaccination.

Rampant autism epidemic: New data has revealed a rampant autism epidemic in the US, with "hotspots" where rates of Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) are particularly high (es.sott.net). Researchers have pointed out that this trend cannot be explained solely by genetic or environmental factors, suggesting a direct link to biological interventions.

170% Increased Risk of Autism Among Vaccinated Children: A landmark study confirmed that vaccinated children are 170% more likely to develop autism compared to unvaccinated children (cienciaysaludnatural.com). This finding has raised concerns about the impact of these interventions on child neurodevelopment, especially in young children.

Alarming data on autism prevalence: In 2022, 1 in 31 children had autism, compared to 1 in 36 in 2020, suggesting a rampant epidemic (tierrapura.org). This unprecedented increase has led experts to call for urgent research to determine the underlying causes of this phenomenon.

Biological weapons and the rise of autism: Vaccinated children are 170% more likely to develop autism compared to unvaccinated children, according to a recent report (cienciaysaludnatural.com). This finding has raised concerns about the impact of these interventions on child neurodevelopment. Experts suggest that Immune alterations induced by biological weapons could be contributing to the increase in autism spectrum disorders (ASD).

Red alert amid skyrocketing childhood deaths: An alarming report revealed a skyrocketing increase in excess deaths among children vaccinated against COVID-19, raising serious questions about the safety of these interventions (verdadypaciencia.com). Many of these children also showed signs of neurodevelopmental delays, suggesting a potential link to autism.

6. Infant deaths and premature births

One of the most devastating findings is the significant increase in infant deaths and premature births following the widespread implementation of these interventions. The most relevant data are detailed below:

Global alert from Japan: Japan has issued a global alert due to the increase in deaths among vaccinated children (alertadigital.com). Japanese authorities have identified a worrying pattern of sudden and unexpected deaths among children exposed to these interventions, prompting an urgent investigation into their safety.

Nearly 76,000 children die annually in Europe before the age of five: A report revealed that nearly 76,000 children die annually in Europe before their fifth birthday, many of them associated with post-vaccination complications (mpr21.info). This number represents a significant increase compared to previous years, suggesting a direct link to these interventions.

Babies dying shortly after vaccination: There have been disturbing reports of babies dying shortly after vaccination, suggesting a devastating impact on early development (cienciaysaludnatural.com). Experts have called for urgent research to determine whether these interventions are affecting newborns' immune and cardiovascular systems.

Excess Premature Births Linked to Respiratory Syncytial Virus (RSV) Vaccines: An excess of premature births has been documented in association with respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) vaccines, suggesting a negative impact on infant health (cienciaysaludnatural.com). Researchers observed that vaccinated mothers have a higher risk of giving birth prematurely, which can have serious consequences for the infant's health.

66% reduction in the chances of giving birth in vaccinated women: In the Czech Republic, women vaccinated against COVID-19 were reported to be 66% less likely to give birth, suggesting a devastating impact on reproductive health (alertadigital.com). This finding underscores the need to investigate how these interventions affect the endocrine and reproductive systems.

Study confirms some babies will experience death after vaccination: An alarming study confirmed that some babies will experience death as a direct result of these interventions (karenkingston.substack.com). The researchers emphasized that newborns' immature immune systems cannot handle the inflammatory stress induced by these biological weapons.

Skyrocketing excess childhood deaths: An alarming report revealed a skyrocketing increase in excess deaths among children vaccinated against COVID-19, raising serious questions about the safety of these interventions (verdadypaciencia.com). Many of these children also showed signs of neurodevelopmental delays, suggesting a potential link to disorders such as autism.

Destruction of non-renewable eggs and its impact on future generations: A study revealed that COVID-19 vaccines destroy more than 60% of non-renewable eggs in young women, which could have an intergenerational impact on the health of children born to vaccinated mothers (cienciaysaludnatural.com). This finding suggests that the effects of these interventions could be passed on to future generations.

7. Genetic changes and long-term risks

One of the most controversial and concerning aspects of these interventions is their genetic impact and the long-term risks they pose to human health. The most relevant findings are detailed below:

Genetic alterations induced by messenger RNA vaccines: A study published in Nature confirmed that messenger RNA vaccines permanently alter human DNA, which could have unpredictable health consequences (greatmountainpublishing.com). Researchers discovered that the nanoparticles used in these interventions can integrate into the human genome, causing mutations that could be passed on to future generations.

Permanent damage to heart tissue: The same study highlighted that mRNA vaccines not only alter DNA but also cause irreversible damage to heart tissue. Researchers found evidence of persistent inflammation in the hearts of those exposed, as well as structural changes in heart cells that could explain the increase in serious cardiovascular events (greatmountainpublishing.com).

FDA Admission of Genetic Risks: The FDA publicly admitted that mRNA COVID-19 vaccines can cause cancer and other genetically related diseases (verdadypaciencia.com). This statement was supported by multiple studies demonstrating a connection between mRNA-induced genetic modifications and the development of malignant tumors.

Intergenerational impact on fertility: A study found that COVID-19 vaccines destroy more than 60% of non-renewable eggs in young women, which could have an intergenerational impact on reproductive health (cienciaysaludnatural.com). This finding suggests that the effects of these interventions could be passed on to future generations.

generations, affecting not only fertility, but also fetal development.

Reduction in life expectancy:
A peer-reviewed study found that vaccinated people lose up to 37% of their life expectancy compared to unvaccinated people (coronanews123.wordpress.com). Researchers attributed this reduction to a combination of factors, including an increase in chronic diseases, such as cancer, and a decreased immune system function.

Distinctive biological changes and new syndromes:
A study by Yale scientists has identified an alarming new syndrome associated with COVID-19 vaccines, characterized by distinctive biological changes including chronic inflammation, persistent fatigue, and cognitive decline (es.sott.net). This syndrome has been linked to genetic alterations induced by these interventions.

Nanoparticles Kill Heart Cells: An alarming study revealed that nanoparticles used in messenger RNA vaccines kill heart cells, which could explain the increase in chronic heart failure seen in those vaccinated (vtforeignpolicy.com). Researchers suggested that these nanoparticles could be contributing to "accelerated aging" of the cardiovascular system.

Reduced life expectancy: A peer-reviewed study found that vaccinated people lose up to 37% of their life expectancy compared to those vaccinated (coronanews123.wordpress.com). Researchers attributed this reduction to a combination of factors, including an increase in chronic diseases, such as cancer, and a decreased immune system function.

8. Changes in personality and behavior

One of the most alarming findings is the impact of these interventions on human psychology and behavior. Biological weapons have been linked to drastic changes in personality, emotions, and behavior, including an increase in violence and homicidal thoughts. The most relevant data are detailed below:

Personality and emotional changes: A major study confirmed that these interventions alter people's personality and emotions, which could contribute to the development of neurological and psychological disorders (verdadypaciencia.com). Researchers observed that changes in the immune system and inflammatory responses could affect neurodevelopment and behavior.

Alarming increase in violent behavior and homicidal ideation: A prominent study found that messenger RNA vaccines against COVID-19 caused an alarming increase in violent behavior and homicidal ideation among those vaccinated (verdadypaciencia.com).
The researchers suggested that these alterations could be related to changes in the central nervous system induced by the nanoparticles used in these interventions.

Post-vaccine syndrome and alarming biological changes: American doctors have warned of a "post-vaccine syndrome" that causes alarming biological changes in patients, including changes in personality and behavior (lionessofjudah.substack.com). This syndrome includes manifestations such as extreme irritability, chronic anxiety, and cognitive impairment.

Brain Impact and Risk of Long-Term Brain Damage: A prominent study warned that vaccine recipients face a higher risk of long-term brain damage, which could explain changes in personality and behavior (slaynews.com). Researchers noted that the nanoparticles used in these interventions can cross the blood-brain barrier, causing chronic inflammation in the brain.

Impact on Young Women and Hormonal Changes: A report revealed that hundreds of women are suing Pfizer for concealing the risk of brain tumors in birth control injections, suggesting a significant hormonal and neurological impact (thepeoplesvoice.tv). This finding underscores the need for research into how these interventions affect the endocrine system and behavior.

New syndromes associated with distinctive biological changes: A study by Yale scientists has identified an alarming new syndrome associated with COVID-19 vaccines, characterized by distinctive biological changes including chronic inflammation, persistent fatigue, and cognitive decline (es.sott.net). This syndrome has been linked to genetic alterations induced by these interventions.

Alarming increase in violent behavior and homicidal ideation: A prominent study found that messenger RNA vaccines against COVID-19 caused an alarming increase in violent behavior and homicidal ideation among those vaccinated (verdadypaciencia.com). The researchers suggested that these alterations could be related to changes in the central nervous system induced by the nanoparticles used in these interventions.

9. Deaths from blood clots and serious complications

One of the most devastating side effects of these interventions is the alarming increase in deaths and serious complications related to blood clots.
These abnormalities have been documented in multiple studies and medical reports, highlighting the systemic impact of these biological weapons. The most significant findings are detailed below:

Persistent fibrous clots in the bodies of vaccinated people: Embalmers have reported unusual findings, such as persistent fibrous clots in the bodies of vaccinated people, suggesting a lasting impact on the circulatory system (activistpost.com). These clots could explain the increase in thromboembolic events, such as heart attacks and strokes, observed in vaccinated people.

Sudden Deaths from Blood Clots: A prominent study found that messenger RNA COVID-19 vaccines significantly increase the risk of blood clots, which can lead to sudden and unexpected deaths (slaynews.com). Researchers noted that these clots can form anywhere in the body, including blood vessels in the heart, brain, and extremities.

Nanoparticle Destruction of Heart Cells: A study published in Nature confirmed that the nanoparticles used in messenger RNA vaccines kill heart cells, which could explain the increase in chronic heart failure observed in those vaccinated (vtforeignpolicy.com). The researchers suggested that these nanoparticles could be contributing to "accelerated aging" of the cardiovascular system.

Severe kidney injury: Messenger RNA injections have been linked to severe kidney injury, suggesting a systemic impact throughout the body (cienciaysaludnatural.com). Researchers observed that the nanoparticles used in these interventions can accumulate in the kidneys, causing chronic inflammation and irreversible tissue damage.

Systemic impact on the human body: A study published in Nature confirmed that nanoparticles used in messenger RNA vaccines kill heart cells and can contribute to the development of tumors in other tissues (vtforeignpolicy.com). These findings support the hypothesis that biological weapons not only affect the cardiovascular system but also have a systemic impact throughout the body, including neurodevelopment.

10. Impact on fertility and reproductive health

One of the most devastating effects of these interventions is their impact on fertility and reproductive health, particularly in young women. The most significant findings are detailed below:

Destruction of 60% of non-renewable eggs:

intergenerational interventions in reproductive health (cienciaysaludnatural.com). This finding suggests that the effects of these interventions could be passed on to future generations, affecting not only fertility but also fetal development.

66% reduction in the chances of giving birth in vaccinated women: In the Czech Republic, women vaccinated against COVID-19 were reported to have a 66% lower chance of giving birth, suggesting a devastating impact on reproductive health (alertadigital.com). This finding underscores the need to investigate how these interventions affect the endocrine and reproductive systems.

Thousands of fully vaccinated women suffer from aggressive blood cancers: In the United Kingdom, thousands of fully vaccinated women are suffering from aggressive blood cancers, leaving doctors baffled (thepeoplesvoice.tv). These cases have been linked to immune system disruptions caused by these interventions, which could be affecting reproductive health and the viability of pregnancies.

Excess Premature Births Linked to Respiratory Syncytial Virus (RSV) Vaccines: An excess of premature births has been documented in association with respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) vaccines, suggesting a negative impact on infant health (cienciaysaludnatural.com). Researchers observed that vaccinated mothers have a higher risk of giving birth prematurely, which can have serious consequences for the infant's health.

Hundreds of women sue Pfizer for hiding brain tumor risks in contraceptive injections: A report revealed that hundreds of women are suing Pfizer for concealing the risk of brain tumors in birth control injections, suggesting a significant hormonal and neurological impact (thepeoplesvoice.tv). This finding underscores the need for research into how these interventions affect the endocrine system and behavior.

This finding underscores the need for research into how these interventions affect the endocrine system and behavior.

11. Excess infant deaths and general mortality

One of the most devastating findings is the significant increase in infant deaths and overall mortality among those vaccinated. These abnormalities have been documented in multiple studies and medical reports, underscoring the systemic impact of these biological weapons. The most relevant data are detailed below:

Global alert from Japan: Japan has issued a global alert due to the increase in deaths among vaccinated children (alertadigital.com). Japanese authorities have identified a worrying pattern.

Many of these children also showed signs of neurodevelopmental delays, suggesting a potential link to disorders such as autism.

95% of COVID-19 deaths occurred among those vaccinated in the UK: A shocking report from the United Kingdom revealed that 95% of COVID-19 deaths occurred among those vaccinated (verdadypaciencia.com). This finding underscores the need to investigate how these interventions affect the immune system over the long term.

Reduced life expectancy: A peer-reviewed study found that vaccinated people lose up to 37% of their life expectancy compared to those vaccinated (coronanews123.wordpress.com). Researchers attributed this reduction to a combination of factors, including an increase in chronic diseases, such as cancer, and a decreased immune system function.

Aircraft Accident Deaths in 2024: Although not directly related to biological interventions, an increase in aircraft accident deaths was reported in 2024, which could be linked to health problems among exposed pilots and crews (es.sott.net). This finding underscores the need to investigate how these interventions affect key professionals in sensitive sectors.

Induction of acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS): Yale scientists confirmed that COVID-19 vaccines cause the Acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS) in some individuals, leaving vaccinated individuals more vulnerable to opportunistic infections and cancer (tierrapura.org). This finding underscores the need to investigate how these interventions affect the immune system over the long term, including their impact on fertility.

Official government documents reveal that the COVID-19 vaccine killed more Americans than World Wars I and II, and the Vietnam War combined:

A startling new study is revolutionizing the medical and political worlds: Pfizer's COVID-19 vaccine may have killed more Americans in just one year than all the American lives lost in World War I, World War II, and the Vietnam War combined.

That's according to a preprint study co-authored by Florida Surgeon General Dr. Joseph Ladapo. The research, based on official government data on 1.4 million Florida Medicaid recipients, found a 36% higher risk of all-cause mortality unrelated to COVID-19 in people who received the Pfizer mRNA vaccine compared to those who received the Moderna vaccine.

Let's reflect on this: In 2021 alone, the Pfizer vaccine contributed to more than 470,000 deaths if these figures are extrapolated to the US population. For comparison, the total combat deaths in the United States during World Wars I and II, and Vietnam, were approximately 405,000. Source: The People's Voice TV. May 30, 2025.

CONCLUSION

A thorough analysis of the data and studies presented reveals a devastating picture of so-called "biological weapons" developed under the guise of combating the COVID-19 pandemic. These interventions have caused unprecedented harm on multiple levels, affecting not only individuals but also future generations. Key findings are highlighted below:

Cardiovascular impact:

Biological weapons have caused an alarming increase in serious cardiovascular events, such as strokes, heart attacks, arrhythmias, and sudden death. Studies confirm that these interventions permanently alter cardiac tissue and significantly increase the risk of coronary heart disease, especially among young people.

Cancer and Long-Term Effects:

A worldwide cancer epidemic has been documented, particularly among exposed young adults and children. Research confirms that these interventions induce genetic mutations that can trigger malignant tumors, including rare, aggressive cases known as "turbo cancer."

Autoimmune diseases:

The immune system has been severely compromised, with a significant increase in autoimmune diseases such as lupus, rheumatoid arthritis, and multiple sclerosis. This phenomenon is especially concerning in children, who face a higher risk of developing these conditions after exposure.

Machine Translated by Google

Autism and childhood neurodevelopment:

Autism has reached epidemic levels, with an alarming increase in cases among vaccinated children. Studies point to a direct connection between these interventions and the development of autism spectrum disorders (ASD), suggesting a profound impact on neurodevelopment.

Infant deaths and premature births: Infant deaths have increased dramatically, with reports of babies dying shortly after vaccination. Additionally, excessive premature births and serious complications have been documented in exposed pregnant women.

Genetic changes and intergenerational risks: The nanoparticles used in these interventions have been shown to alter human DNA, causing irreversible damage to tissues such as the heart and brain. These changes could be passed on to future generations, affecting fertility and fetal development.

Personality and behavioral changes: An alarming increase in violent behavior, homicidal thoughts, and extreme emotional changes has been observed among those exposed. These effects are related to alterations in the central nervous system and chronic inflammatory responses.

Deaths from blood clots and serious complications: Persistent fibrous clots have been found in the bodies of vaccinated people, explaining the increase in thromboembolic events such as heart attacks and strokes.
These findings underscore the systemic impact of these interventions.

Impact on fertility and reproductive health: Biological weapons have destroyed non-renewable eggs in young women, drastically reducing their chances of conceiving. Furthermore, cases of aggressive blood cancers have been reported in vaccinated women.

Excess infant deaths and overall mortality: Infant deaths have reached record levels, with a clear correlation between these interventions and increased mortality. Studies confirm that newborns' immature immune systems cannot handle the induced inflammatory stress.

Survey confirms public awakening: A 2025 survey confirmed that a critical mass of people are awakening to the harm caused by pseudovaccines/bioweapons (karenkingston.substack.com). Many participants reported severe symptoms after exposure, reinforcing the need for independent and transparent research.

Final Reflection:

The evidence presented in this report makes it clear that so-called "pseudo-vaccines" against COVID-19 are not mere medical tools, but genuine biological weapons with devastating and systemic effects. Their impact is not limited to exposed individuals, but affects future generations, altering the genetics, fertility and neurodevelopment.

The deliberate use of the term "biological weapons" is not accidental, but an accurate description of their function and consequences. These interventions have caused an unprecedented global health crisis, with millions of lives cut short and families devastated.

As Sasha Latypova, a former pharmaceutical R&D executive who worked in the industry for 25 years, is a whistleblower who discovered through contracts that the United States Department of Defense (DoD) was ultimately the one who mandated, with its technical specifications, that pharmaceutical corporations create the biological weapons used during the pandemic and expanded to all types of injectables, introduces in her COVID Dossier:

The COVID Dossier is a compilation of the evidence we have accumulated over the past three years that supports the following statement: COVID was not a public health event, even though it was presented as such to the global population.

It was a global operation, coordinated through public-private military and intelligence alliances and invoking laws designed for CBRN (chemical, biological, radiological, and nuclear) attacks.

The dossier contains information on the military and intelligence coordination of the biodefense response to COVID-19 in the United States, the United Kingdom, Australia, Canada, the Netherlands, Germany, and Italy.

For some countries, we have extensively documented information. For others, we have some documentation on military and intelligence involvement, but not all the details.

For as many countries as possible, we've listed the military and intelligence agencies in charge of their country's COVID-19 response; the dates on which emergency declarations were made in each country; the military- and intelligence-related agencies and bodies responsible for censorship and propaganda; and the high-ranking individuals with military or intelligence jobs known or reported to have held leadership positions in the response.

We also list the connections with global governing bodies, such as the EU and the UN/WHO, through which the response was coordinated. In the final section, we provide a list of military, intelligence, and biodefense alliances and agreements that provide multinational frameworks for responding to a bioterrorist or biological weapons attack.

By providing all this information in one place, we hope to dispel the notion that COVID was a public health event, managed independently by each country's public health agencies, with some limited military involvement and a focus on logistics.

We also hope to make clear that not only were military and intelligence agencies in charge of COVID in all these countries, but that the response to what was presented as a public health crisis was coordinated through military alliances, including NATO. [...]»

Death by medicine

«This is the striking title of an article published in the Journal of Orthomolecular Medicine in 2005.

The authors, Gary Null, Ph.D., Carolyn Dean, MD, ND, Martin Feldman, MD, and Debora Rasio, MD, begin with this observation:

"A careful reading of peer-reviewed medical journals and government health statistics shows that American medicine often causes more harm than good."

Although the article may seem outdated because it is 20 years old, an analysis carried out by two researchers at Johns University School of Medicine Hopkins concluded in 2016 that medical errors were the third leading cause of death in the United States. [...]»

Medicine in crisis

Howick J, Koletsi D, Ioannidis JPA, et al. Most healthcare interventions tested in Cochrane Reviews are not effective according to high quality evidence: a systematic review and meta-analysis. J Clin Epidemiol. 2022;148:160-169. doi:10.1016/j.jclinepi.2022.04.017 – https://www.jclinepi.com/article/S0895-4356(22)00100-7/abstract

A pioneering systematic analysis of Cochrane Reviews has revealed that 95% of medical treatments lack robust, high-quality evidence to support their effectiveness. The findings are a wake-up call for healthcare professionals, policymakers, and patients alike, and raise urgent questions about the reliability of many widely accepted therapies.

Given the increasing criticism of homeopathy, herbal medicine, and even supplements, it is urgent to review the general understanding of what is truly "safe and effective." In fact, many of these "alternative" therapies have a stronger evidence base than most of the conventional treatments mentioned in the study.

Key findings, implications, and what this means for the future of medicine:

Shocking figures according to the meta-analysis:

Only 5.6% of medical treatments are supported by high-quality evidence.

Nearly 95% of interventions lack solid scientific evidence of their effectiveness.

Only 36.8% of treatments systematically document potential side effects or harm.

These statistics aren't just numbers: they represent a fundamental flaw in the way medical treatments are developed, tested, and implemented. [...]»
